Education And The Teacher

Few people look upon periods of depression such as Western Canada has experienced in the past few years, along with most of the other countries of the world in varying degree, with complacency. On the contrary here, as elsewhere, such experiences are usually regarded by the great majority as periods of unadmitted evil, with dissatisfaction and unrest their inevitable concomitants.

It is customary, under such conditions, to surround everything with a halo of gloom. Everything is wrong at home and abroad. Words and deeds are subjected to criticism in an intensive search for microscopic flaws and motives are probed with deep, underlying suspicion. Altruism and faith in fellow mankind almost appear to have gone into hibernation and the whole stream of life seems to be ruffled with turbidity. Criticism is the order of the day.

Criticism of the right type and with the proper motive behind it has, of course, its place in the scheme of things. In fact, without it, there could be little if any progress, but if it is to fill its appointed role in life, it must have behind it a sincere desire to promote betterment and must be dictated by reason rather than swayed by blind passion.

The educational systems and educational methods in operation in the prairie provinces are among the many things which have had to run the gamut of the critical vogue of the period. The criticism which has, in recent years, been voiced freely at conventions, school board sessions, public meetings and during election campaigns in the home and on the street comes not only from parents of children attending educational institutions and the general public but also from educational authorities, teachers and others trained in the craft of pedagogy.

One hears, on the one hand, that the educational system is too expensive and too extravagant. On the other hand, governments and trustees are accused of parsimony. One day the people are told that, in effect, the educational system and set-up is lagging behind the times and the following day, that it is too far advanced for the requirements of present day social conditions and requirements.

As to methods, curricula, equipment and text books, criticisms are legion and varied, so much so, in fact, that it would take a ponderous tome to even list them.

While it may be very difficult, and perhaps impossible to crystallize all these opinions and criticisms into some co-ordinate form which might enable them to be attacked and dealt with on a scientific basis, the existence of so much discussion on such an important topic demonstrates, at least, that the depression is having the beneficial effect of arousing a keener interest in a topic of vital interest to the future welfare of the country, because it cannot be denied that the trend of education of the youth of today will largely determine the destiny of the nation tomorrow.

Because of this it is highly important that there should be some unification of majority opinion on educational systems, methods and trends.

There are one or two things which should not be lost sight of in the welter of discussion which often, unfortunately, ranges around comparatively trivial details. That is, the main purposes of educational systems, which might briefly be enunciated as the intention of developing a desirable type of citizen and of developing a citizen capable of fitting himself or herself into the life of the community.

This means the development of a race of people with character and ability to think and act for themselves. If this is borne in mind as the chief objective of education, the great importance of the character and ability of the teacher becomes immediately apparent, a matter of far greater importance than the method, the text book or the curriculum, of even greater importance than the type of building in which instruction is carried on or the equipment that is used in imparting information.

The statement is not made with any intention of conveying an impression that the schools of the west are not staffed with teachers of character and capacity. On the contrary, the standard of the teaching profession has improved very materially and rapidly for so young a country as the Canadian west and teachers of the present day generally represent a high standard.

But it should be pointed out that if more emphasis is laid on the character and ability of the teacher as an essential of the first importance, the controversies over many other phases of the educational system would assume their rightful comparative values and would be relegated to the rear as questions of more or less minor consequence.

Replicas Of Crown Jewels

Collection Represents Forty Years' Hobby Of One Man

There will shortly be on view in London a collection of about 2,000 full-scale replicas of Crown jewels, regalia, insignia, and other emblems of royal ceremonial which have cost their owner nearly £30,000.

The collection covers most of the past and present monarchies of Europe, and represents the 40 years' hobby of one man and endless patient work by jewellers, stone-cutters, polishers, and other highly skilled craftsmen. Naturally the British Crown jewels hold pride of place. They go back to the crown of Alfred the Great (circa 871) and embrace the crowns, sceptres, and orbs of 30 Kings and Queens since that time. Every example is as near a perfect reflection of its original as is possible, except, of course, the diamonds, rubies, pearls, and other precious stones, which are represented by brilliant and synthetic stones.

Each is an absolute copy for size, shape, cutting and setting, color and polish, and so meticulous has been the effort to achieve historical accuracy that the owner of the collection has literally spent months in the Tower and the London museums making sketches and in collecting photographs and measurements.

In olden days each King and Queen had a new set of Coronation jewels. Most of these were destroyed in the Commonwealth days, and in more modern times economy calls have resulted in crowns being altered to suit successive monarchs.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile every day. If it doesn't, your food doesn't digest. It just sits in your stomach, and you get indigestion, gas, and constipation. That's why you feel so tired and so out of sorts. You need something that will help your liver pour out its bile. That's why you need Carter's Little Liver Pills. They get those two pounds of bile flowing freely. They make the liver work like a clock. They make the stomach, bowels, and all the organs of the body work like a clock. They make you feel like a new man. They make you feel like a new woman. They make you feel like a new child. They make you feel like a new citizen. They make you feel like a new man. They make you feel like a new woman. They make you feel like a new child. They make you feel like a new citizen.

Search For Gold In England

King Of Dowsers Arrives In London From Vienna

Armed with a small silver divining rod, and clad in a picturesque uniform, Dr. Emerich Herzog, "King of Dowsers," arrived in London from Vienna of search for gold and oil in England.

Interested parties, he says, have invited him to take part in the hunt for oil in the south. During his stay he will undertake a lecture tour, his engagements including an address to the British Society of Dowsers.

Drawing his rod from an inside pocket of his coat, Dr. Herzog gave a demonstration. Held over a cup of water the rod pointed its sprung tip downward.

This rod is not his only apparatus. He has with him 27 different types of dowsing machines for divining the presence of different mineral deposits.

Dr. Herzog, 76, has 49 years' experience of dowsing. He claims the discovery of important deposits of copper, gold, beryllium and platinum in Austria and himself owns gold, silver and lead mines revealed by his own rod.

Dr. Herzog came over to England by air and says that while the aeroplane was travelling between the coast and Croydon he recorded oil and gold deposits.

Disliked Travel By Air

Racing Greyhound Leaped 2,600 Feet To Its Death

After biting its way through the fabric of an airplane during a trip from Brisbane to Sydney a racing greyhound leaped 2,600 feet to its death. The dog had been placed in a wicker crate in the baggage compartment at the rear of the passenger cabin, and apparently became excited at air travel. It escaped from the crate and then started the task of tearing its way through the fabric. It eventually succeeded for when the air liner arrived at the Sydney airport the greyhound was missing and the fabric was torn.

Japan Buys Canadian Ship

Merchant Marine Freighter Has Been Sold Five Times

Apparently under permanent ownership at last, the former Canadian government merchant marine freighter, Canadian Leader, sailed from Halifax with a Japanese crew for the West Indies to pick up a cargo of scrap iron consigned to Japan.

Since her sale along with nine other government steamships last winter to the Montreal-Australia-New Zealand line, the Canadian Leader has had a checkered career. She was sold by the Anzac line to the British Tower Steamship Company, resold to Rethymia and Kulkunda, Greek shipping company, and finally bought by Japanese interests at a price reputed to be $82,500. It was also reported Japanese interests had bought the Canadian Victor, now in England, and the Canadian British at Montreal.

Revising Their Manners

Japs Studying Proper Greeting For Next Olympic Visitors

Foreigners who attend the Olympic games at Tokyo in 1940 will be spared the embarrassment of the naive Japanese salutation, "How old are you?"

Police are passing the word around that the heretofore proper greeting—from the Japanese viewpoint—is distasteful to foreigners, especially women.

Although the Olympiad is three and a half years ahead, Japanese are already getting ready. Study of English has been given a great impetus among store clerks, policemen and businessmen. Early concern for the morals of Japanese girls is being dissipated.

It is said that it is possible to make a razor blade that would keep its edge indefinitely without stropping, but such a blade would cost approximately $25.

State Coach Of Speaker Of The House Being Reconditioned

The state coach of the speaker of the House of Commons is being refurbished up for the coronation.

Its last appearance was at King George's jubilee, when the speaker rode in it to St. Paul's. At King George's coronation in 1911 it merely conveyed the speaker from the House of Commons to the abbey, a distance of less than 300 yards.

Oddly enough while the coach, with harness and stables, is provided by the state, the speaker has to arrange himself for horses. For nearly a century Whitebread's brewery has had this privilege, which dates from the time when Mr. Speaker Shaw-Lefevre married a Whitebread. The coach weighs nearly 3½ tons, and having no brakes cannot go down hill.

Breathes With Iron Lung

Birdsall Sweet, now 18, has completed the fifth year he has spent with an "iron lung" to aid his breathing. Hospital attendants in Beacon, N.Y., described his spirits as good and his growth in height and weight nearly normal. His treatment began after an attack of infantile paralysis.

"I hear you're going to be married, old man! I hope you'll be very happy."

"Well, I don't see why I should not. I came through the War all right."

Our sins will find us out, but they can generally be relied upon to call again.

Show Their Patriotism

Thousands Of Families Change Swedish Surnames To Finnish

Thirty thousand families have officially changed their Swedish surnames to more Finnish-sounding ones. This wave of patriotism follows the example of 25,000 families who did the same at the recent Kalevala (national epic) centenary celebrations. Considerable confusion has resulted from this sudden change, states a message from Helsingfors. Postmen, particularly, are finding it a problem to deliver letters to the right people, and correspondents have to think twice when they address business and personal friends.

A Brand New Industry

Calling Elk For Photographers Is Job Of Banff Guide

Banff has a brand new industry which was invented by Les Saunders, of Bowden, north of Calgary, who is a trail guide there in the summer. On long pony trail trips he amuses guests at the Banff Springs Hotel by imitating the peculiar mating call of the elk. It was not long until he found bull elk answering him, and finally approaching near to investigate. Now he is kept busy calling elk from the woods for enthusiastic photographers.

—A NOVEL BY—
GEORGIA CRAIG

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

As their eyes met she had a premonition that she and this blonde representative of the aristocracy of old New York were fated to clash more than once. Thinly veiled antagonism clashed between them, almost a thing you could see instead of merely feel, in its intensity. Starr sensed the trouble with Stephanie at once. The girl was jealous of Michael Fairbourne's attentions to "Play-Girl," and now that she had seen Starr, all Michael's protests that his interest was purely in his firm's behalf were under suspicion by Stephanie, who was inclined to have thoughts of her own on the subject.

Starr's mocking smile deepened. Her supercilious pose was heightened. There was a hint of devilment in her voice as she answered:

"I am interested to meet you, too, Miss Dale. Hassan—oh, dear, will I never remember to say Michael!—has told me so much about you."

For a second naked venom burned in Stephanie's blue eyes. She flung at Michael in a brilliant voice:

"Better be careful to whom you speak of me, Mike, darling. I certainly don't want to be put between the covers of one of Starr Ellison's 'true confessions'!"

Starr caught her breath sharply, as though she had been slapped in the face. She closed her eyes, and on opening them, all at once she found herself alone. Stephanie had turned away unceremoniously. Someone had claimed Michael's attention for the moment. Starr looked around, bewildered.

A voice caught her ears. Stephanie's frosty voice. Deliberately loud, so that Starr could not help over-hearing. Stephanie was saying to somebody:

"I think it's simply terrible that poor Mike has to be associated with a creature of her type, even though it's merely in a business way. His firm is handling her book, you know, and they've insisted on his attending to her publicity. As if she needed any more! But Mike's so clever . . . And of course he's expected to be nice to her on the firm's account, sort of act as a master of ceremony, as it were . . . But, my dear, it's perfectly galling when decent people have to pander to a common adventuress!"

CHAPTER VII.

Starr flushed to the very roots of her hair so that was the story Michael had told Stephanie! Her red mouth set in a bitter straight line. She might have known. Though surely Michael owed a shred more gallantry than that the girl who was helping him carry out his fantastic whim? No matter how little he knew of her—or cared to know. No matter what he imagined her previous life had been. He should have some little consideration for her. If his book made him rich enough to marry Stephanie Dale, she of the stiff-necked aristocracy, it would be partly because of the brief part played in his life by Starr Ellison.

Starr was jolted out of her temporary embarrassment, her moment of quick resentment, by a man's voice. At first she thought it was Michael. But the eyes looking down into hers were as black as her own, instead of gray. The face was leaner, and the hair incredibly sleek, where Michael's hair had had an arresting wave.

The man smiling at her said: "I believe I'm the only man here who hasn't been introduced to you. I'm beginning to wonder if the over-sight isn't deliberate."

Starr recognized him. True, she had not met him, but she remembered Michael saying:

"See that chap over there—dark-complexioned chap with the Menjou look? That's the Lance Marlowe. If my book had been 'Play-Boy' instead of 'Play-Girl,' Lance is the very type I would have picked. He's tailor-made for the part. He's been a play-boy

IN BED FOR WEEKS WITH BACKACHE

Quick Relief With Kruschen

It was advice from her mother that led this woman to take Kruschen for her backache, and before she had finished the first bottle she was feeling better. This is the letter she writes:

"About this time last year I had severe pains in my back and was prostrate for three weeks. I could not even rise in bed. I tried several well-known remedies, but to no avail. Then I wrote to my mother telling her of my trouble. She wrote to me by return of post urging me to try Kruschen. I immediately bought a bottle and I can truthfully say before I had taken the fifth dose I could sit up. I kept on taking them and in less than two weeks I was up again. I am never without Kruschen now." (Mrs.) A.G.

Unless the kidneys function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms: backache, rheumatism, and excessive fatigue. Kruschen Salts is an excellent diuretic or kidney aperient, valuable in assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

For twenty years—always will be, I guess.

"I don't suppose he ever found any good reason for being anything else, and it seems to have been wished on him. His father left him a fortune. He has a yacht, a string of polo ponies, all that sort of stuff, but so far as anybody knows he has never done an honest day's work in his life. Or any other kind. His favorite indoor sport is buying diamonds for his current light of love, and they come and go in quick procession. Also, and this is important in the eyes of a good many New Yorkers who still cling to such outmoded ideas as decency, as far as the honesty and chastity of women are concerned, he is probably the most dangerous man in New York!"

Starr felt a little tinge of excitement when the man whom Michael had so sketchily characterized spoke to her. It was a long moment before she answered his greeting. And then her reply was in keeping with the role she was playing.

She drew, with a slow smile, as her long eyes lifted to his lazily.

"Perhaps Michael believes in saving the best for the last."

Lance suggested: "Or perhaps he is not unaware that a friendship unconventionally begun is always all the more thrilling."

Lance laughed, and Lance hurried on, his black eyes burning down at her: "Now that we have met, am I not going to have the opportunity for you to tell me all about yourself?"

Starr's eyes dropped demurely, then she lifted them—for the scantiest fraction of a second to say:

"There's nothing left to tell about me—that everybody doesn't already know . . . I might begin at the beginning, though, and tell you I'm free, white, and twenty-one, and—"

"Adorable!" whispered Lance, his voice husky. "Will you dance with me?"

Starr held up her arms and they glided into a dance. He was pleasant to dance with, lithe and graceful, and when the music slid from a waltz into the haunting throbs of a rumba, with the waves of the Spanish music holding in its depths the suggestion of the emotional pleading of love in a setting of moonlit balconies and patios inside rosy walls, slow-eyed sermons with mantillas, Starr steps fitted perfectly into Lance's skilled footwork. Her own perfection was the result of Michael's teaching.

Lance's sleek black head bent closely over hers.

"How has such a girl as you ever managed so long to remain ignorant? If you've been anywhere I've been, you've certainly been hiding behind dark glasses!"

"Sometimes I wear a long gray beard," Starr murmured.

"And now?"

"Oh, the usual answer," Starr whispered lightly. "It was shown me so plainly how greatly it would be to my advantage to take off my mask. Money, dear man. . . My appetite for kachush is insatiable, I assure you."

Lance laughed softly. "Money! What a conversation for such a gorgeous dancer. And here I am trying to think of enough words to try to tell you how gorgeous you are— you, with your Cleopatra eyes, and— and—" his head bent lower as he whispered—"your adorable red lips that nobody knows better than you were made for a hundred kisses. . ."

Starr drew back from him a little and looked up into his eyes. Her whisper seemed shocked.

"Only a hundred?" she asked.

"And I had thought—"

"Just the appetizer, my dear," Lance laughed. "There would be a full menu ahead."

Starr studied the man as they danced. His face was not unpleasant. He had a full, rather sensuous mouth, and the bright, roving eyes of a restless pleasure seeker. At such close range she could not see the tiny lines of dissipation marring his well-shaped features, yet even so he looked younger than his years.

She wondered how she was doing with her verbal fencing with him. Was she saying what might be expected of her? The most dangerous man in New York? Well, it was an apt meeting. Did she not hear the reputation of being the most dangerous woman? Play-Boy and—Play-Girl!

They talked a great deal as they danced, and it was a relief to find light chatter with someone who skimmed over the surface of life. The tilt with Stephanie; the long hours during which she was being coached for her part by Michael; the near, dizzy attraction of Michael—all had combined to stir emotions deeper than Starr Ellison had any right to feel. She must not let herself feel too deeply about anything. Her time was too short, and feelings could be so poignant.

Lance Marlowe was exactly the right antidote for her. He was capable of feeling deeply. Of that Starr was instinctively certain. The world for him was not what it was to most. It was his playground. That was the way it must be for her. It had all been settled. For Starr Ellison the world must be her playground—for her brief six months!

It came to Starr all at once that Lance Marlowe was one man who could show her how to crowd a lifetime of thrills and excitement into every single day, if she would let him.

He was saying, as they swept down the long glittering floor of the ballroom:

"I can't see, all joking aside, why you've remained anonymous so long. Were you afraid? No—" he shook his head—"Now that I've seen you I can't believe that's the reason. I must have been out of consideration for your less fortunate sisters whose pale beauty is dimmed by your Egyptian princess brilliance. Starr, there's no need for all that Egyptian baloney in my case. I'd have known it for the truth no matter where I saw you, nor under what circumstances." He laughed, with a lit of understanding exultation in his voice. "But how you're going to make them all suffer now!"

It was a charming thought for a man to say, but Starr thought the words passed his lips just a little too lightly. She shot him an amused glance from beneath her long, silken lashes.

"I suppose that's your usual line for every new woman you meet?"

Make Good Mechanics

Esquimaux Have Considerable Aptitude States Bishop Of Arctic

Telling of an Eskimo convicted of murder and serving five years at the R.C.M.P. barracks, Aklavik, who is "perfectly harmless" looks after the inspector's child when his wife is busy, and is declared by her to be "the best nurse I could get anywhere." Rt. Rev. Dr. Archibald L. Fleming, Anglican bishop of the Arctic, related a number of incidents and observations of his recent tour of his huge diocese, one-third the entire land area of Canada.

The bishop, whose domain comprises 2,250,000 square miles, land and water, travelled 4,576 miles by 4,000 by railway and 900 by water, averaging 100 miles a day despite 15 days' delay at Herschel Island, and visited every mission except Bathurst Island and Cambridge, where the ice and snow were impossible to penetrate.

While Eskimos make better carpenters, the Eskimo have considerable mechanical aptitude, said the bishop, telling of losing the second-hand of his watch and having it replaced by a local boy. He was also capable of feeling deeply. Of that Starr was instinctively certain. The world for him was not what it was to most. It was his playground. That was the way it must be for her. CUNNINGHAM-GILLESPIE

A wedding of considerable interest to Gleichen and district people took place in Calgary last week. The following is from the Calgary Herald:
The North Hill United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday when Verna Hazel, only daughter of Mrs. E. M. Gillespie, was united in marriage to Mr. Stanley Struthers Cunningham, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Cunningham, with Rev. J. Rex Brown officiating.

The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Newton Gillespie, looked lovely in an ivory satin gown cut in princess lines with a Mary Queen of Scots collar.
She wore a halo veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower of Johanna Hill roses.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. B. Moon and Mr. H. Handley sang "Because" while the register was being signed. The bride-groom was attended by Mr. Clark Boulton.
The bride's only attendant, Miss Patricia O'Malley, wore a gown of peach point d'esprit and a beige picture hat and carried a bouquet of deep gold chrysanthemums.

The bride's mother was attired in a black chiffon velvet dress with hat to match and wore a corsage of American beauty roses. The groom's mother chose for the occasion a becoming marina blue chiffon dress and a velvet hat with a veil and wore a corsage of talisman roses.

A reception was held in the Masonic Hall on Sixteenth Avenue and Centre street north where 115 guests were entertained. The bride's grandmother, 91 years of age, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. A.
Cunningham, also attended the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a four-tier wedding cake and flanked with tall pink tapers.

For going away the bride wore a green angora suit with black patent leather accessories. The bridal couple left on a motor trip to Banff and other mountain resorts. On their return they will reside in Calgary.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Glen House tells the following one.
Seven years ago a farmer living only a few miles from him hung his vest on the barn yard fence. A calf chewed up a pocket of the garment in which there was a standard gold watch. A short time ago the animal, a staid old milk cow, was butchered for beef and the time piece was found in such a position between the lungs of the cow that the respiration—the closing in and filling of the lungs—kept the atom winder wound up, and the watch had lost but four minutes in seven years.

There Are Differences

Is there any difference between Pool elevators and line elevator companies? The latter seem anxious to prove that both are the same, but there are several essential differences.

1. Alberta Pool Elevators are the property of 43,000 Alberta grain producers. They are built for service and not for profit. This is not the case with line elevator companies.

2. The finances and operations of Pool elevators are an open book.
Each year they are scrutinized by seventy delegates who are representatives of the producers. The detailed operations of the whole system of and every Pool elevator are thus obtainable from elected delegates. Is there one line elevator company who will provide customers with such information?

3. The Pools use the grain exchange. But this does not imply an obscure attitude toward that organization. The Pools believe that the democratic weakness of the speculative system during the depression had a serious reflection in the collapse of agriculture, and that a national wheat board would have offered greater protection. The line elevator companies are not in favor of a national wheat board and never were. John I. McFarland, who conducted stabilization of wheat prices for five years, testified: "Theoretically the open futures system is an ideal system for the handling of wheat, if it works; but when it fails to function as it has failed, because of world-wide subsidies, over-supply and absence of speculators to carry the hedged, then my sympathy leans entirely toward the producer and his protection."

4. The Pools believe the Canadian wheat producers should be given assistance and protection to as great a degree as that of other interests in Canada. The Pools maintain that agriculture is Canada's most important industry and cannot be neglected. The grain trade, on the other hand, continually campaigns for marketing Canada's wheat at "world prices."

5. The grain trade says that the Pools operation cost millions. That is pure fabrication. Under the McFarland stabilization operations Canadian farmers produced, and marketed the surpluses of, wheat crops totaling more than one billion bushels, and Canadian prices were maintained at a substantially higher level than those of competing countries.
For months the Canadian premiums ran as high as 25c a bushel over prices of competing wheat.

6. The Pools believe that agriculture needs an aggressive over-price organization supporting its interests and reflecting the expressed wishes of producers and not subservient to vested interest. The line elevator companies ARE vested interests.

7. The line elevator companies recent being designated as a "family compact" but the very advertisement denying this relationship was a joint affair and tends to substantiate the statement.

Far-seeing grain producers will support

Alberta Pool Elevators
